

Dr. Jelena Vrublevska, works at the Department of Psychiatry, Riga Stradins University, Latvia. She received her medical training from Riga Stradins University in Latvia in 2007 and completed her residency in psychiatry at the Riga Centre of Psychiatry and Narcology, Latvia in 2012. She is currently working on her doctorate thesis and is involved in the teaching of students at the Riga Stradins University. She is actively lecturing nationally at different CME events for GPs and specialists. Her primary research interests include epidemiology, clinical diagnosis and classification, primary care psychiatry, comorbidity, disorders. She is author or co-author of a number of studies published or presented in congresses